Among Friends

Nancy McIntosh

The Friends of the Library held their most recent meeting at Coffee on Main on July 8th. It was wonderful to see everyone's smiling faces as we exchanged stories of our trials and tribulations throughout the past few Covid months. Everyone appeared a little worn but none the worse for wear.

Discussion included plans and changes for the upcoming months. Regrettably, the Christmas Trivia in July has been cancelled. The Family Fun Run/Scavenger Hunt, currently planned for late September, remains undetermined at this time due to the virus. The Annual Auction, scheduled in November, is still on track as this year we hope to add an exciting online auction, allowing our Auction to proceed even if we are restricted on location.

As always, the Friends group welcomes any newcomers to join us. Call the library at 736-3913 for more details.

From the Director's Desk

By Rhonda Thompson

It has been so nice being able to serve patrons even in the limited capacity as curbside. At least we get to talk to you and take books out to you. Perhaps in a few months we will be able to do much more.

That said, it is time to let you in on what we have been doing for the last month. The library has been boxed up and shelves torn down. These items have made it over to the old post office for safe keeping. An enormous thank you goes out to Richard and Stefanie Eimers for allowing us to use their building. We purchased a storage container, but it only held about 25% of the space we would need.

We also held a yard sale to help get rid of some items we didn't need, but perhaps were of some use to someone else. We also set some items out for free. Thank you to everyone who stopped and bought something. Your purchase allows us to make a bit of money and free up some space.

This has all been done in order to prepare for the long awaited renovations to the library. They will be starting very soon. As of right now, I am unsure of exactly when the contractor will be here, but likely within the last few days of July. I cannot wait. We have been working on this for so long, from the start of writing the first grant and the start of the fundraising. It will be so nice to finally see this come to fruition.

It does not end here though. We will have to resume fundraising soon in order to meet the 25% plus of the grants we applied for. Be watching for some events as time goes on and activities can be held safely and Covid-19 hopefully fades away.

The library will stay with a curbside pickup through this phase of the renovations. Once we can move bookshelves and books back into the library we will open back up to the public to come on in. We will still have to social distance, wear masks and sanitize your hands and everything else, but at least we will be able to open back up. It will be so wonderful to operate as a regular functioning library again!

The amount of work that has been done is crazy, almost impossible when you think about it. Please read the other sections of the newsletter to see our appreciation for those who gave of their time, muscle, sweat and equipment to make this possible. When you get to come into the library again it will all be due to these wonderful people.

Join a Board Meeting

If you are interested in virtually joining a Ripley Public Library Board meeting, please contact the director, Rhonda Thompson, 716-736-3913 with your email address and you can be sent a link to the meeting. Or you can email her at director@ripleylibrary.org Leave a message. We will return your call.

Ripley Writer's Group

Our budding authors have been on hiatus since the COVID-19 outbreak, but that doesn't mean they have stopped writing. Hopes are they can get back together this fall. If you'd like to join this talented group of writers for some tips or encouragement with your own writing, let the library know by calling 716-736-3913.

We Get Letters

Every so often The Bookworm receives a letter or email telling us of the good things we're doing. The Director received the following letter and would like to share it with you. We're so glad to know our efforts help, especially during this COVID-19 virus pandemic.

Good morning !

Hope you're staying safe & healthy! I wanted to take a sec and let you know what a great resource your library's web page <https://www.ripleylibrary.org/virtual-tours> has been for my family... My mother moved in with us just before the COVID outbreak and with twin 9 year olds we definitely had our hands full LOL. But we were able to get some AWESOME resources to use while everyone was stuck at home during quarantine thanks to your links...especially the virtual field trip resources! My girls loved exploring the Boston Children's museum.. it's great granddaughter/grandma bonding time too!

The girls suggested that we send a thank-you note...or e-mail haha. But it does feel like a good time to show gratitude and put some positivity into the world so here we are => Thank you!!

We also wanted to share another good resource to return the favor, so the girls and their Nana all picked out a neat article about museums in Dubai, at <https://www.bayut.com/mybayut/best-museums-dubai-list/>. Their older sister studied abroad in Dubai last year and they loved hearing all her stories.. They thought you'd want to add this to your virtual museum resources, for other people to learn from this summer! Hopefully it's helpful..

Thanks again, and have a good day. If you're able to use their suggestion on your page I'll be sure to show them.. everyone was so excited to see if you liked it so I think they'll be proud seeing it there haha. Stay safe and have a wonderful summer! Thanks.

From The Bookworm Staff: Thank you for writing to us! We can't wait to explore the website you suggested!

Fun in the Kitchen

With Rhonda Thompson

Zucchini Fritters

Are you a cuisine artist? Maybe you just like to get creative in the kitchen. I do. My family has suffered through many of my experiments. Some okay, others not so much. Some have even been keepers.

I was playing around with some zucchini the other day and realized how much I hated frying them. They taste very good that way, but what a pain.... dipping in the egg mixture, then dipping in crumbs then put in the frying pan, cook to a golden brown, flip the dumb things then repeat. Take them out of the pan drain on paper towels, add more grease (not good for you) and start again.

So I said to myself... "self, there has to be a better way". So I grated the zucchini, mixed it with egg and some spices. Then I added some cracker crumbs.

(I use cracker crumbs instead of bread crumbs, I just like them better) You could even try instant mashed potatoes, maybe even the flavored ones.

They were very sticky but I made patties out of them and fried them in very little grease. You could even put them in the oven, but I would still grease the pan. I cooked them until golden brown on each side and they were very good. They did not taste like fried zucchini, but they are more like a zucchini fritter. My husband insisted he tasted corn, but there was no corn in them. It was fun, they were easy and tasted good even cold out of the fridge.

Since this first time of doing this, I made zucchini fritters again and added some fresh corn, green peppers and a small amount of onion. These were good too. What amazes me is how good they are cold. They can be used as a snack to just grab and go. You should try them out. Put your own spin on them. Let us know what your creations turn out to be.

In this election year it is more important than ever to understand the process of politics. As much as we hope our politicians are honorable and working in our best interests, it isn't always that easy. The following is part of a series of articles written by Mary Ellen Humphrey who served as both a state representative and senator.

Adventures in Politics Land

By Mary Ellen Humphrey, former State House and Senate Member

Every unique environment has its own jargon. When I arrived at the State House, it was a whole new world, with its unique words and phrases. ABOVE THE FOLD was an important one, which I learned when I sponsored a bill for someone.

This gentleman came to my office shortly after I was elected to the Senate. "I'd like you to sponsor a bill for me," he said.

He was an older gentleman who lived in a different senate district. "Why aren't you asking your own senator to sponsor your bill?" I asked.

He explained that the bill had been sponsored several times and always failed. Apparently he'd read about me in the newspaper and decided I was the right one to sponsor his bill in hopes of success this time.

He explained that he had four sons and when he passed away, he wanted his sons to take his body and bury him in his home-made pine coffin in their family burial plot on his own land. He did not want to be forced to use a funeral parlor. I was struck by his sincerity.

I asked why the bill failed in the past. Turned out funeral parlors opposed it, and the hospital association had concerns about dead bodies in the custody of grieving relatives. We strategized how to deal with the opposition, and I agreed to sponsor his bill.

To my surprise many people shared his viewpoint and the public hearing was filled with supporters. The funeral parlors opposed it and there was no convincing them otherwise, but the hospital association decided, considering new evidence we provided, they would remain neutral, albeit expressing concerns. People spoke about the olden days when houses had wider doors to allow for at-home funerals, and how normal it was to take care of loved ones who passed away. The bill passed out of the Senate unanimously. Even the Senate president stepped aside briefly to register his supporting vote.

The newspapers picked up the story perhaps as a bit of political respite from the more challenging and partisan issues that session. Front page articles ran statewide with clever captions like "Senator Sponsors Bill to Conduct Own Funeral."

My mentor, Howard, told me "ABOVE THE FOLD – Good job!" As usual he laughed when I looked at him quizzically. Apparently politicians want to be on the top of the front page in newspapers, above the fold, where people will at least see the headlines.

The bill ran into obstacles in the House, but with a lot of work and patience, it eventually passed. The day after it was signed into law by the governor, I arrived at my office to find a beautiful plant and a thank you note. In all my tenure as a legislator, he was the only one who actually thanked me. His note said, "I knew you'd get it done." Perhaps it was all those articles ABOVE THE FOLD.

Virtual Visits

While we're still semi-quarantined there is still a lot to do and places to see. You can explore dozens of museums, aquariums, and zoos around the world without leaving home.

Let's take a sample trip! Go to <https://www.ripleylibrary.org> then scroll down to the bottom of the page where it says Resources.

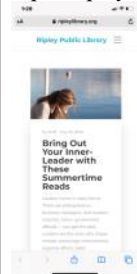

At the bottom of the Resources list is Virtual Tours/Cams. Click on that and explore the list of places you can go. Just for fun, let's go to the list of Zoos and click on The Cincinnati Zoo. From there you can explore their Facebook page, or you can click the zoo's link (<http://cincinnatizoo.org>) to be taken to their home page. Close the Reopen Policies window.

Want to hear a lion roar? Click on Animals at the bottom of the home page, then click on the A-Z tab, where all the animals are listed alphabetically. Oh! There's the African Lion! Click on him to read about lions and listen to a clip of lions roaring.

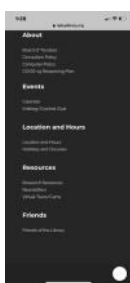

You and your child can spend hours exploring and perhaps learn a bit along the way! To quote Dr. Seuss, "Oh, the places you'll go!"

My Choice

By Sharon McIntosh

Periodically I like to return to a favorite author for a good comfortable read. This month, the author is Debbie Macomber and the title is Starting Over.

Libby Morgan had worked relentlessly and exhaustively for six years in a corporate law office, made a name for herself by going over and above what she thought was expected of her, working long hours and taking files home with her.

When her boss called her into his office, she was ready and eager for the promotion to full partner that she had been dreaming of. Instead, he told her that because of the economic downturn, he had to pare some of the staff and she no longer had a job. He further told her that another reason she was being let go was because she hadn't brought in enough paying customers. He told her she needed to use her time off to regroup and "get a life". He softened this somewhat by saying that she needed to find a purpose and a cause and that work wasn't everything.

Libby returned to a small town outside Seattle, WA and made friends with the staff of a yarn shop, took up knitting caps for preemies, befriended the shop owner's daughter and her teen-age friend. Libby volunteered at the local hospital to rock preemies, met a Doctor and made more friends.

Learning to knit, making friends outside of work, becoming more aware of everyday problems and helping others along the way provide an interesting and satisfying read.

Time to Show You Care

The coronavirus has placed a great deal of stress on us all. Some people have gone above and beyond in their response during these troubling times.

To show your gratitude, here is a great activity for parents to teach their children how to appreciate the people who care for us.

Brighten the day of these special caregivers. Copy and paste this website (eduatlasorg.wordpress.com). Then let the games begin.

Each child can show off their creative talents while showing how much they care.

BOOK CLUB IS BACK!

The Silent Patient by Alex Michaelides

The Book Club will meet at Coffee on Main on Friday, August 7th at 10 a.m. to discuss The Silent Patient. We will meet outside on the deck, weather permitting.

September's Book Club selection is Nights in Rodanthe by Nicholas Sparks.

How to Beat the Heat

The summer months often bring very hot and humid weather. Not everyone has the luxury of air conditioning. While the Ripley Library was often an escape from the heat, this year, due to the virus and upcoming renovations, the doors remain closed to the public as a means of cooling off.

Instead, the following suggestions may help you keep cooler:

- Run fans to keep the air circulating
- Don't cook inside - try grilling and a variety of salads and fresh fruits
- Keep your windows covered during the heat of the day
- Go underground – your basements may be 10 degrees cooler
- Stick your sheets in the freezer for awhile before making up the bed
- Wear loose clothing
- Place a shallow pan full of ice in front of a fan
- Add ice packs or cold compresses to pulse points at neck, wrists, elbows and ankles
- Decrease your intake of alcohol beverages, sugar and caffeine
- Drink lots of water
- Consider using a spray bottle filled with water for refreshing spritzes
- Try to get your work done in the early morning when possible
- Enjoy a good book while relaxing
- Keep your pets cool with a bath or shower that will lower their body temperatures.

Enjoy the summer while keeping as cool as possible!

Helpful Hints

Make your own Laundry Soap

Would you like to save money? Want to stretch your dollars further? Well, you can if you make your own laundry soap. I have done this for a very long time and then one day I ran out. I had to buy a bottle of laundry detergent. I was shocked at the price. This was not something I had budgeted into my shopping for a while.

Here is the recipe:

- 4 cups of very hot tap water
- 1 cup of washing soda (available in most stores for about $4.00)
- ½ cup of borax (also available in most stores for about $4.50)
- 1 bar of Fels Naptha soap (available in most stores for about $1.00)
- 1 five-gallon bucket

Heat 4 cups of water in a large pot (I actually use more water than this, I usually use about 2-3 quarts) add washing soda and borax to hot water and begin heating on medium heat.

Grate the bar of Fels Naptha soap and add to the heating mixture. Continue heating until the soap has melted. Fill the five-gallon bucket about half full of hot tap water. Add the heated soap mixture to the water. Stir until well mixed. Then fill to the top of the bucket and let sit overnight. The laundry soap will thicken as it cools and becomes almost gelatinous. I like to mix it all up with my hands as it feels cool. You can use a large spoon or paddle to do this, but you will miss the gratifying feeling of playing in the soap. (Good clean fun)

Use about ¾ cup of soap for each load of clothes.

Something to be aware of though is it will not suds up like regular laundry soap. This does not mean it is not working or cleaning, it just makes it easier to rinse the clothes thoroughly.

If you want to add fragrance just use a few drops of essential oil in each bucket. You can put the detergent in old bottles if you want. Just shake well before using. I keep mine in the bucket I made it in and stir it with a large stirring stick. You can use any usual laundry additive like bleach or OxiClean.

Go ahead have some good clean fun. Make your own laundry detergent and save yourself some money.
